SKBP/SKLSI are committed to setting pricing principles that offer greater value to patients, families and societies by addressing their unmet needs. Our goal is to deliver these benefits and contribute to the society by developing innovative medications and increasing patients' accessibility to our products.

We adhere to a value-based pricing approach for our medications. The prices of our products reflect the benefits that are delivered to patients, healthcare systems, and our societies. We set prices with the expectation of a number of outcomes, including - enhancement to a patients' health and quality of life, accessibility of medication to patients in need, and pricing affordability established by SKBP/SKLSI along with payers and governments.

SKBP/SKLSI are actively working with payers and governments to make our products accessible to as many patients as possible. To help patients afford treatments in markets where this is allowed, we established flexible pricing solutions by providing co-pay and other relevant assistance programs. Based on our policy of abiding to value-based pricing, we will continue to invest in conducting research and developing innovative medicines as well as sustainably address unmet needs of patients and healthcare systems.
